Those taken to the Fourth Ward school house morgue have been identified as follows: George Robb, Wolfgang Fisher, Mrs. Kirkbride, Linda Kirkbride, William Nerberger, Alexander Montgomery, a young woman, not yet identified.

Eight bodies were removed from the morgue in the Second Presbyterian church yesterday. Three of them were identified as Mrs. Elizabeth Stroyer, Henry Bucker and August Elder. The remains of William Bantly, Edith Shoemaker and Mrs. Rev. Literberg were recovered at Kerrsville.

The Red Cross society have formed a hospital corps for the benefit of the workmen, many of whom are injured daily. This society has been doing excellent work.

Thankful for Relief.

At a meeting of the finance committee of the relief committee, in Johnstown, a resolution was adopted thanking the Pittsburg chamber of commerce for its agreement to continue to act as the agency for furnishing supplies, etc., after the exhaustion of its own fund. Cyrus Elder, one of the committeemen, said:

The situation is greatly unsettled. No provision has yet been made for anything beyond the payment of the wages of the laborers engaged in removing the debris. Johnstown had no debts of consequence, and its municipal government was about perfect. We were just preparing for extensive improvements. The health of the city was good, and the city was always free from epidemics of all kinds.

Work of the Red Cross.

It is feared at the Red Cross corps headquarters that the flood has left a parting curse hovering over the Conemaugh valley in the form of the dread disease diphtheria. The attention of the medical people are now directed to Kerrville, where the Red Cross makes no secret of a prevailing epidemic. Miss Clara A. Barton and Dr. O'Neill, of the Red Cross, has decided to established a hospital at Kerrville, and after much trouble with the local authorities secured a site and erected their hospital tents with Dr. Berns, of Philadelphia, in charge. To-morrow morning they will be prepared to receive the patients, of which there is a large number.

A Coroner's Jury Impaneled.

Coroner Evans' jury, impaneled on the case of Mrs. Hite, of Johnstown, to endeavor to fix the responsibility for the disaster, held another session yesterday in Kerrsville, and adjourned till next Wednesday. In setting the case of Mrs. Hite Dr. Evans was careful to get a flood victim about whose identity there could be no doubt, and whose death by the flood could be thoroughly authenticated. At the next session testimony as to the safety of the South Fork dam and the culpability of the proprietors will be taken.

Two Million Dollars from Pennsylvania.

Governor Beaver will call a special session of the legislature was said last night. Adjt. Gen. D. H. Hastings sent a telegram to the governor at Harrisburg declaring that an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of making an appropriation of $2,000,000 for the relief of the people of Johnstown was important. Gen. Hastings was at the wire early yesterday evening and had a long and earnest talk with the governor. He told him that in his judgment a special session of the legislature should be called at once. He said he had carefully gone over the situation and had sought the opinions of others. He was extremely anxious to know how the contributions were coming in and said that it would be necessary to make heavy daily draft in whatever amount might be raised outside in order to keep the work going on. He said if the contributions reached $1,000,000 it would take that amount to clean out the city debris and pay the people of Johnstown and the men who were employed from outside. In addition he thought the state should give $2,000,000.

Gen. Hastings told the governor that if he thought his, Hastings, judgment too high, he would be glad if Governor Beaver would come to Johnstown for a day or two and look it over. After the talk over the wire with Governor Beaver, Gen. Hastings said: "The work that is going on now so nicely cannot last longer than a week or so at the outside unless the money for conducting it on a permanent basis is furnished either by the state or the people of the United States."

It is stated on almost undoubted authority that Governor Beaver has decided to call an extra session of the state legislature.

Another Victim Rescued Alive.

Another victim of the wreck has been rescued from the ruins alive. Thursday night Mrs. George Stantler, wife of one of the prominent photographers of the town, was taken from the wreck of a house down near the point. Mrs. Stantler was lying when found in a cavity beneath a pile of beams and rafters, which held up the mass of ruins and prevented them from crushing her.

She was unconscious, and was just breathing. Her hold on life was a very slender one, and it is not probable that she will live, although she is receiving the tenderest care. When the news of her rescue, after six days and nights of exposure and lack of nourishment spread through the town, hundreds of people crowded about the stretcher on which she was being carried to see her.

It is considered almost miraculous that she should have remained alive so long. The rain and cold were enough to kill her without the bruises and wounds which she received during the flood.

At Nineveh.

At Nineveh alone Thursday 750 bodies were buried from the morgues about town. Father Doirn conducted religious services at the St. Columbia Catholic church, in Cambria City. The army of the dead was placed in trenches. Less than 100 had been recognized by friends.

None of them were claimed for private burial, however, as in a majority of instances the survivors were too poor to stand the expenses. These bodies were gathered from up and down the river below Johnstown, and the commissioners of Westmoreland county furnished the plat of the ground where they sleep.

Clara Barton's Telegram.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The following telegram was received yesterday evening.

"JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 7.

"A. S. Solomons, V. P.; Red Cross, Washington, D. C.:

"You have no idea of the delays and difficulties met with here. We have a splendid corps at work. Reports published are not overdrawn. Everything useful to the surviving, who have lost all is greatly needed.

"CLARA BARTON,

Washington's Contribution.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The contributions to the Johnstown flood sufferers' fund now aggregate $32,925.

Another Dangerous Reservoir.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 8.—A special to The Herald from Olean says the largest artificial body of water in the country is situated near Olean, 782 feet above the level of the village, and is liable to burst at any moment. It was formerly a feeder to the old Genesee canal, but is now used for sporting purposes. The state superintendent of canals and all the people in the valley have protested often against it. About ten years ago this dam burst, partially flooding the valley. The reservoir is one-third larger than Lake Conemaugh was. A strong effort will be made to abolish it.

The Cuba Reservoir Breaking.

CUBA, N. Y., June 8.—The reservoir at this place is breaking, and the water is being drawn off through the outlet to prevent a break in the dam.

ANOTHER FLOOD.

One Family Drowned and Half a Million Property Destroyed.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., June 8.—In all the history of central Pennsylvania there has never been known such high water, or never have they been attended with such disastrous results as that of the last day of May and first of June. In 1865 and again in 1876 Center county had floods, but this time the waters at this place were two feet higher than on either previous occasion.

Bellefonte is built principally upon hills, but notwithstanding that fact the waters overflowed the lower streets and filled the lower parts of houses. The damage at Bellefonte was very slight, but in the Gold Eagle valley $500,000 will not cover the damage done. From the upper end of the valley at Tyrone, through its entire length, down to Lock Haven, the water is spread over the entire valley, almost a mile in width, and from three to fifteen feet in depth. Where a week ago was a rich, fertile valley blooming with the promise of beautiful crops, there now is nothing but a barren waste, dotted every here and there with huge piles of stones and debris, the remains of houses and barns and all kind of buildings torn to splinters and piled up by the relentless flood.

In all that stretch of valley, from a distance of seventy miles, there is not one farm uninjured. The Bald Eagle Valley railroad was washed out more than half its length, but has since been temporarily repaired and there are now trains running into Bellefonte over that road. In Milesbury the water filled the houses to a depth of from three to six feet and great damage was done. No lives were lost, however. The iron bridge at that place was washed away and the Mill Hall bridge at the lowest end of the valley was also taken. The loss, independent of the railroad, through this valley is estimated at half a million dollars. In Penn's valley and along the line of the Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont railroad, the worst damage in the county was done. Millheim was under water to a depth of three feet and being very level, sustained severe damage, every business house losing one-half of its stock. But at Coburn the waters reached their worst. It spread over the entire town, and in some places by actual measurement were thirty feet deep. To add to the horror of the situation was the fact that it was at night and pitch dark, while the rain descended in torrents. Families who had not time to take to the hills climbed on the tops of houses only to feel their places of refuge topple and themselves fall into the foaming cauldron of seething, certain destruction. There were drowned a Mrs. Simon Phoust and two children, but had it not been for prompt assistance scores would have perished. At one place thirty-five were pulled from the foaming torrent and many others succeeded in effecting a landing for themselves. Simon Phoust was in Cameron county at the time and being notified of the fate of his family, he started for home. In crossing the Sinnemahoning river, he, too, fell in and was drowned, and thus the entire family was wiped out of existence.

In Coburn there is not one good house left standing. Individual losses cannot be enumerated, but the total loss will aggregate fully $300,000. The valley is strewn with dead bodies of all kind of animals. The Lewisburg railroad from Coburn to Lewisburg, a distance of forty-five miles, is a complete ruin, only fifteen miles of track yet remaining. It will be weeks before it can be repaired for travel.

At Philipsburg no damage worth mentioning was done.

Bellefonte has been completely isolated ever since last Friday. No mails from east or west have reached here in that time, and to-day was the first telegraphic communication to be had. The Pennsylvania railroad are now running trains on the Bald Eagle, and it is hoped that in a few days better arrangements will be made, although it may be months before the service will be as complete as it was.

Reliable reports from Lockhaven states that, while only one person was drowned in that city, the list of those known to have perished in the county of Clinton is thirty or more. The property loss will reach millions of dollars, and business is at a standstill. Danger is now threatened them from sickness. Robert I. Fleming is treasurer of the relief fund.

THROUGH A BURNING TRESTLE.

Engine, Mail and Baggage Cars go Down, but the Passengers Saved.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 8.—A frightful disaster and great loss of life was averted yesterday morning by the presence of mind of a brave engineer. The south bound fast express train on the A., G. S. road ran into a burning trestle sixty-five miles south of this city, at 2 o'clock. The engine, mail and baggage cars went down with the burning trestle, but the two passenger coaches and three sleepers, containing over one hundred people, were saved.

The trestle was of wood, and about 170 feet in length and forty feet at the highest point. The trestle was only fifty feet south of a sharp curve. As the train rounded this curve at a high rate of speed, the engineer saw the trestle in flames. He reversed his engine, applied the air-brakes and after blowing a danger signal leaped for his life. The fireman, mail, baggage and express agents all leaped in time and escaped with a few bruises. As soon as the engine reached the thickest of the flames the trestle gave way.

The engine and mail and baggage cars went down with a crash, but the coaches stopped at the edge of the fire. The badly frightened passengers climbed out and pushed that part of the train which remained on the track back out of reach of the flames. The mail and baggage cars were soon burned to ashes. The passengers were much frightened, but escaped unhurt. About half the trestle was destroyed, but the damage will be repaired and trains running through before night.

Murderers Hanged.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 8.—John Feaster, alias John Henry Williams, and Charles R. Calston, both colored, were hanged yesterday in Yorkville, S. C., for the murder of W. O. Abernethy, a white man, who was a merchant at Catawaba Junction, S. C. The deed was committed in May for purpose of robbery. Both claimed to be innocent and Calston, who had confessed his guilt, said that his confession was false.

Veto Done No Good.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 8.—Governor Bulkeley vetoed the secret ballot bill yesterday, and the house passed the bill over the veto, but afterward reconsidered the vote and tabled the veto.

Securing Evidence.

Several More Witnesses Examined in the Cronin Case.

ALL THAT WAS TESTIFIED TO.

Alexander Sullivan Again Closely Connected With the Crime—Proving a Conspiracy Against Dr. Cronin—Cause of the Doctor's Expulsion From the Clan-na-Gael.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Detective Mike Whelan was the first witness called in the Cronin inquest, but he failed to respond. Peter McGeehan, the Philadelphia suspect, was then called, and, failing to answer, an order was issued for his arrest. Both Whelan and McGeehan were present, however, when the inquest adjourned for the day, they having quietly passed in a short time before, no one appearing to know how they got there.

The first witness of the day was Police Officer David Brown, who was Dr. Cronin's accuser in the trial in Camp 96, which resulted in the doctor's expulsion from the order. Brown testified that he was a member of the Clan-na-Gael at the time Dr. Cronin was expelled. He belonged to Camp 16 and does still, but he has not attended much in the past three years. The charge against Dr. Cronin was treason, and consisted in reading before Camp 96 a circular sent out by an expelled camp.

The witness said he preferred and wrote out the charges himself. He had an emphatic negative answer for every question, intimating that some one else asked or ordered or directed him to make the charges. He was positive in assuming the whole responsibility for making the charges. He was not an officer in the order and did not hear Dr. Cronin read the circular, but visiting Dr. Cronin's camp soon after it was read, he heard it talked about, and knowing that the reading of such a circular was contrary to the rules of the order, he preferred the charges.

Lawyer Isles was the next witness, and said that in the summer of 1887 Dr. Cronin had consulted with him professionally, and had told him that he had evidence that a conspiracy against him existed in this city. William Starkey had asked him to testify as an expert in a certain case, and an attorney had cross-examined him with great minuteness as to his early life. About the same time Cronin's sister had written her brother from Catherines, stating that two men had called on her recently and questioned her in regard to him, saying that it concerned Cronin greatly in a case in New York. Cronin wrote to New York and found that no such case existed. "At last," continued witness, "the doctor jumped up and exclaimed: 'Alexander Sullivan is as black as h—l. He and other are trying to ruin my reputation and failing in that, they will seek my life.'"

Luke Dillon, of Philadelphia, was the first witness after recess. He knew Dr. Cronin intimately as an unselfish, patriotic and useful man in the Irish movements. Dr. Cronin had told him that it was Alexander Sullivan's ambition to rule, both in Irish and American politics, and that this ambition would be the cause of Dr. Cronin's death. Dr. Cronin had expressed himself as believing that Alexander Sullivan had no more blood in him than a fish. The witness thought at that time that the doctor had Alexander Sullivan on the brain, and that Sullivan was only an ordinary villain. He had changed his mind, however. At the time that Alexander Sullivan, Boland and Feeley were tried in Buffalo, Sullivan had protested against Dr. Cronin sitting on the trial committee, in such language that he believed Alexander Sullivan responsible for the murder, if not principal in it.

The remainder of the session was given to the testimony of John F. O'Malley and Lawrence R. Buckley, who were members of the committee that tried and expelled Dr. Cronin. Their testimony elicited no new facts, being confined to such details concerning the composition of the committee and its action as they chose to remember.

In West Sedgewick county many houses and barns and acres of crops were leveled to the ground.

The Business Outlook.

What R. G. Dun & Company Has to Say.

INTERFERENCE OF THE FLOODS.

Traffic Greatly Interfered With on Account of the Great Disaster—Impossible to Estimate the Full Extent of the Interference—Prices and Prospects of Coming Crops.

NEW YORK, June 8.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: The calamity at Johnstown has touched all hearts, and seriously interrupted business at many points. Other disasters by flood in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York and the Virginias have involved enormous loss of property, interrupted traffic even more than the blizzard of last year, and entirely changed the situation in the eastern lumber trade, the coa, iron and steel trades. Producing companies of the first importance have suddenly ceased operations, and their orders must be filled by others or delayed.

The flooding of many coal mines cut off supplies of fuel for many manufacturing works, and the stoppage of the Cambria mills and furnaces, which produced yearly over 300,000 tons of iron in various forms, will affect the trade for some time. The destruction of more than forty bridges, about half of them on the Pennsylvania railroad, besides many locomotives, cars and miles of track, creates a sudden demand which is felt in all iron and steel markets. Vast quantities of lumber have been swept away, and thousands of houses and other buildings must be quickly replaced, with a vast quantity of supplies.

It is impossible as yet to estimate the effects in various branches of trade, but the demand for many kinds of iron and steel products is already felt in a firmer tone and advancing prices. Pig iron, however, does not change as yet, the production previous to the disaster having been much in excess of the consumption, and while some producing capacity is cut off, quite as much of the consuming capacity is also stopped by the destruction of manufacturing establishments or their cessation for lack of fuel. The southern sales of pig have been heavy at former prices, but 25,000 tons of rails have been sold, and the price is firmer at $27, while structural, plate, tank and bar iron are stronger, and an advance is looked for in nails. Transactions in anthracite coal have been limited at the late advance, but the tone is stronger.

Many soft coal mines are cut off for the present, and the movement from the Pittsburg district is interrupted by lack of boats.

Wheat and oil have been lower, but in other speculative markets the general tendency has been toward higher prices. A limited foreign demand and the pressure of accumulated stocks depress wheat a fraction, and flour ten cents per barrel, but corn is about one-half cent stronger. Cotton has advanced one-sixteenth, but the annual statement of acreage and condition by The Financial Chronicle indicates an increase of 3 per cent. in acreage to 20,800,000, and a better condition than a year ago. Coffee is one-quarter stronger, but the market is dull, because consumers prefer to wait. Sugar has been advanced one-quarter, and the statistical position is considered strong, but the growth of demand for consumption is as yet only anticipated. Some grades of leather are a little stronger, and confidence in the boot and shoe outlook is unabated. In dry goods trade is fair for the time of year, though prints hardly equal expectations as to volume of business, and print cloths sell at 3½c for 64s. The new demand for woolens is light, but there is a firmer feeling, and an advance price is expected. Flannels are selling fairly at about auction prices.

The reports from the interior show a fair volume of trade in progress, except where disasters have interrupted. In those localities business is prostrated, and many individual losses will call for the indulgence of creditors. Elsewhere collections are on the whole rather dull, decidedly backward at Milwaukee owing to bad weather, though that has now improved, and but moderate at New Orleans. The money markets are all well supplied and easy, with active demand at Cleveland and detroit, and an improvement at Boston, but in general the demand is but moderate. At Philadelphia receipts of wool are cut off, but it is felt that growers are asking more than manufacturers can pay and signs of reaction in their demand are observed in some quarters. The building, drug and liquor trades there are active. The white lead trust appears to have been completed by the purchase of two St. Louis concerns. Tin has been weaker at 20.40 cents for June, but copper and lead are both stronger.

Large exports of gold continue for the week, including amounts ordered yesterday, at least $2,000,000 have been sent abroad. In place of gold drawn from the treasury, however, silver certificates have been put out so far that its holdings are a million less than a week ago. Official statements show that in May the currency in use actually outside the treasury increased $16,780,608, and while all interior markets have ample supplies for the present and no lack exists here, the coming summer and fall demands will be likely to cause some pressure if the outflow of specie continues. Foreign operations in trust and other industrial stocks bring a large amount of capital higher, and in the stock market other securities have been stronger. The indictment of agents at Chicago for violation of interstate act as to grain rates tends to strengthen hope that a new war of rates may be averted and it is announced that the Southern Pacific will act in harmony with the Transcontinental association, while the Oregon and Union Pacific contest has been adjusted.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to R. G. Dun & Company, the mercantile agency, by telegraph, numbers for the United States 200, and for Canada 25, or a total of 225, as compared with 215 last week, and 220 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 235, made up of 207 in the United States and 28 in Canada.

OBITUARY.

CLENDENEN—At his late residence [illegible] miles east of Marion, May 2?th, [illegible] Clendenen, aged [illegible] years [illegible] months and [illegible] days.

He was born in [illegible] county, and [illegible] his parents removed to [illegible] county during the year [illegible], thence to Marion county [illegible] and [illegible] on the same farm until death, some [illegible] years. During the year 18[illegible] he was united in marriage with Miss [illegible], with whom he lived happily [illegible] years. [illegible] identified himself with the [illegible] church at its organization [illegible] and served that church as deacon for a period of [illegible] years. Despite many [illegible] he secured a good education [illegible] and taught school [illegible] years of his early life. He served as township trustee for [illegible] successive years and as justice of the peace for some [illegible] years, besides [illegible] many other minor offices. He was of a retiring disposition, [illegible] and unchanged. He was ever a moral man and after his conversion made every effort to live a true consistent christian life, ever [illegible], industrious and persevering, ever striving to [illegible] and [illegible] many [illegible] of entering into that rest which [illegible] the people of God. The funeral services were held at the Clarendon F. B. church, May [illegible], [illegible] Hoverstock [illegible] after which the remains were placed in the Marion vault.

The many relatives desire [illegible] sincere thanks to everyone for words and deeds of kindness during their sad bereavement.

Clarendon-Adelaide.

Allen Dildine, of [illegible], [illegible] granddaughter, Mrs. Wm. Key [illegible] place, last week.

We notice by a program of the [illegible] (Kansas) High school commencement, received by Miss Flo Devore, that [illegible] Wortman, formerly of this place, is one of the honor graduates.

Children's Day exercises will be held on Sunday next. The same will be held at Salem, June 26th, next.

Miss Emma [illegible], of Marion, is stopping at [illegible].

N. M. Ayers, of [illegible], [illegible], is visiting his parents east of Clarendon. He will return [illegible] week.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] died of inflammatory [illegible], the result of whooping cough, on Saturday [illegible] and was buried on Monday.

We learn that one of our Clarendon fellows had his pockets picked at the show.

Miss Laura Ayers, accompanied by her [illegible], Miss [illegible] and aunt by Mr. Crum, [illegible], spent Sunday [illegible] at her father's, W. S. Ayers, and returned to [illegible] on Monday.

A [illegible] en route on its way to Mt. Gilead, slipped into a ditch and was only extricated by an half day's hard work.

June [illegible].

—E. [illegible] is building a fine house on the boulevard.

Near [illegible], Tenn., two men murdered an old lady and a boy, and burned their dwelling to conceal their crime.

[illegible], of Cincinnati, charged with violating the Sunday law, was found "not guilty" in the police court yesterday.

[illegible] rendered a decision favorable to the city in the proceedings to enjoin the [illegible] game from [illegible] bonds. There is great rejoicing [illegible].

The president has commuted to imprisonment for life the sentences of death imposed in the cases of Henry W. Miller and George [illegible] convicted in Arkansas of murder and sentenced to be hanged.

At [illegible], General Manager [illegible] of [illegible] & Company, and [illegible] Lewis, superintendent of the [illegible] works and [illegible], were seriously injured by the explosion of a lard vat.

[illegible], of Shelbyville, Ind., was arrested Thursday by the United States marshal at Terre Haute, charged with passing counterfeit money. He served a term of three years in the state prison for forgery, being but lately released.

Buenos Ayres.

On entering Buenos Ayres from the port one can hardly realize that it is the chief city of South America and one of the most flourishing places in the world. The streets are narrow and badly paved, holes several feet deep being not uncommon and the houses are mostly only [illegible], [illegible] some have one upper story, but very few have two. However it improves on nearer acquaintance. The streets, though not wide, are straight and uniform and far better than those of [illegible] and a great many other important European cities, and between the [illegible] which still exist in many of the principal streets are edifices which would not disgrace the best parts of London or Paris. In trade several well known English and French firms have branch establishments here quite equal in style to their head offices. Buenos Ayres is the most European looking city of South America, yet it is far from being English in appearance. I should rather describe it as "Mediterranean," though it would be difficult to say whether it is more Spanish, French or Italian.

The great majority of the working classes are Italians, and the [illegible] on all the [illegible] are in that language. [illegible] French and Spanish [illegible] Germans, Portuguese and French [illegible]. The restaurants [illegible] equal to the best in the Paris [illegible] can get a [illegible] and [illegible] finds himself [illegible] and an Englishman [illegible] roast beef [illegible] many [illegible].

The Poetic Bank Cashier

It was in [illegible] or somewhere around there. He was a trusted clerk in the bank with all the usual Sunday school [illegible] and a high reputation. [illegible] when the [illegible] became [illegible] of character. The cashier [illegible] and they gave him the vacant post. He was a man of feeling and had a great deal of poetry and originality besides. He was deeply touched by the [illegible] of his friend, whose place he took. [illegible] of the cash [illegible] as much in [illegible] with trust funds. [illegible] a [illegible] poetic [illegible], which [illegible] the eyes of the president and the board. [illegible] They were deeply impressed. Later there came a little [illegible] between the board and himself [illegible] an extraordinary difference in [illegible] between what they thought it ought to be and what he found it was. [illegible] and they turned to a [illegible] of [illegible] summary. [illegible] they found on the first page of his [illegible] two mistakes which were made against the bank and to the cashier's advantage. —San Francisco Chronicle.

Didn't Look Like a Poet.

"About twenty-five years ago I was in Boston one day. It was a sour, [illegible] bad day, rainy, sloppy and muddy—when I saw the [illegible] figure of a little man, wearing a [illegible] hat, [illegible] along the street. [illegible] as little like a poet as a man [illegible]. I turned to the bookseller [illegible] who that was. 'That is [illegible] Holmes,' he said. 'Well, I [illegible] that man, and [illegible] we have been the best of friends [illegible]. A more genial companion [illegible] and a finer [illegible] I never knew. A copy of 'The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table,' [illegible] contains an interesting letter [illegible] for his [illegible] in the Atlantic Monthly, which [illegible] he says he named.

"[illegible] a thousand times [illegible] than that of [illegible]. He visited me, with his [illegible] a [illegible], lovable man, and [illegible] wrote me letters. It is a pity, by the way, that I failed to preserve my correspondence, much of it, doubtless, would be now of considerable interest."—George W. Childs.

A Change of Weapon.

Last winter I climbed Lookout Mountain in company with a veteran of the late war. It was his first visit since [illegible] day of the memorable battle, and as we [illegible] he fought the battle over again for my benefit. As the combat waxed hotter he grew excited, and on our arrival at the hotel near the summit was a fever heat. We then passed into [illegible] the narrow defile which leads to the park, where we were confronted by a [illegible] of the genus "cracker" [illegible] "[illegible] go to the top you have to pay twenty-five cents." This was too much for the pent up feelings of my warlike companion, who, tragically waving his stump right arm, shouted, "I was at [illegible]. Twenty-five years ago I came up here with a sword in my hand. [illegible] modern brigands [illegible] compelled to pay [illegible] quarter [illegible]." [illegible] C. IVORY SOAP
IT WILL FLOAT

CASABIANCA.

THE boy stood on the burning deck,
Whence all but he had fled;
He saw amid the cargo's wreck
A box, and, calling, said:

"Say, father, say if I may sit Upon this box and wait?"
And then without his sire's permit,
Down on that box he sate.

"Say, father," once again he cried,
"My patience is clean gone!"
And but the booming shots replied,
And fast the flames rolled on.

Then came a burst of thunder-sound—
The boy, oh! where was he?
Upon the box, high did he bound,
Then floated on the sea.

For 'twas a box of IVORY SOAP,
And buoyantly it bore
That gallant child, who ne'er lost hope,
Safe to the sandy shore.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory;'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SLAVE TRADE IN AFRICA

A BRUTAL BUSINESS THAT SEEMS TO BE ON THE INCREASE.

The Atrocities of a Slave March Depicted with Painful Distinctness—The Flag of a Great Republic Put to a Base and Degrading Use.

No one who understands how human life is estimated by savage peoples will doubt the shocking and revolting accounts of travelers regarding this phase of the traffic; and no one who knows what an Arab's heart is made of will make any discount even for the exaggeration of an orator, as he listens to the following citation from a speech delivered in London by Cardinal Lavigerie:

MAN'S INHUMANITY.

"The men who appear the strongest, and whose escape is to be feared, have their hands tied, and sometimes their feet, in such fashion that walking becomes a torture to them; and on their necks are placed yokes which attach several of them together. They march all day: at night, when they stop to rest, a few handfuls of raw 'sorgho' are distributed among the captives. This is all their food. Next morning they must start again. But after the first day or two the fatigue, the sufferings and the privations have weakened a great many. The women and the aged are the first to halt. Then, in order to strike terror into this miserable mass of human beings, their conductors, armed with a wooden bar to economize powder, approach those who appear to be the most exhausted and deal them a terrible blow on the nape of the neck. The unfortunate victims utter a cry, and fall to the ground in the convulsions of death. The terrified troop immediately resumes its march. Terror has imbued even the weakest with new strength.

"Each time some one breaks down the same horrible scene is repeated. At night, on arriving at their halting place, after the first days of such a life, a not less frightful scene awaits them. The traffickers in human flesh have acquired by experience a knowledge of how much their victims can endure. A glance shows them those who will soon sink from weariness; then, to economize the scanty food which they distribute, they pass behind these wretched beings and fell them with a single blow. Their corpses remain where they fall, when they are not suspended on the branches of the neighboring trees; and it is close to them that their companions are obliged to eat and sleep. But what sleep! it may be easily imagined."

SLAVERY ON THE INCREASE.

It is enough. Our hearts are sick with slaughter. Let the witnesses stand down. Is the smoke of this torment to go up for ever and ever? Remember that these deeds of blood and darkness are no isolated facts, no temporary misfortunes, no mere passing accidents of the savage state. They are samples of a sustained, accepted and carefully organized system of cruelty and murder which pervades and penetrates every corner of this continent. Do not let it be supposed that this horror is over, that this day of tribulation is at an end. This horror and this day are now. It is not even abating. Slavery is on the increase. Time, civilization, Christianity are not really touching it. No fact in relation to the slave trade is more appalling than this.

The fact of this increase, for a time denied, then doubted, has at last been reluctantly admitted, even by the government of England. In a government blue book her majesty's consul for the Somali coast reports that "the slave trade has been very active of late. On the 16th of Sept. (1888), Capt. Gissing captured three dhows and brought two hundred and four slaves to Aden." The consul at Zanzibar writes (September, 1888) to the Marquis of Salisbury: "There is a marked increase in the slave traffic carried on under the protection of the French flag." The consul further states that dhows carrying French colors were constantly and regularly leaving for the Comoro Islands, Mayotta and Madagascar, loaded with slaves. In June, 1888, Brig. Gen. Hogg, dating from the Aden residency, wrote to the Bombay government: "I have the honor to bring to the notice of government that I have from time to time received reports of the activity of the slave trade from the neighborhood of the Gulf of Tajourra, and I deem it my duty to inform government of this fact with a view to such action being taken as may be deemed advisable."—From "Slavery in Africa," by Professor Henry Drummond in Scribner's.

Highest Mountain.

The highest mountain on the globe is not, as is generally supposed, Mount Everest, that honor belonging to a lofty peak on the Isle of Papua, or New Guinea. This monster, which lifts its snow capped summit far into the clouds, was discovered by Capt. A. J. Lawson, of London, in 1881. According to Lawson this new claimant for the championship is 32,763 feet in height, being 3,781 feet higher than Mount Everest, which is only 29,002 feet above the level of the Indian ocean. This New Guinea giant has been named Mount Hercules.

Of oceans the Pacific is the largest being 11,000 miles long and 8,000 miles wide. It also claims the honor of being the deepest. The deepest place yet measured was near the Leadrone Islands, where a depth of 4,475 fathoms was found. This great depth may be better understood when we consider that 4,475 fathoms is 26,850 feet, or something over five miles.—St. Louis Republic.

Turtle Over 80 Years Old.

H. A. Andrews, of this city, has in his possession a box turtle, commonly called land turtle, which was marked with his initials in 1866. His turtleship was marked in 1809 by Ellis B. Hall, of Raynham, who died over twenty years ago. This turtle is over 80 years old, and probably 100, as they have been known to exist that long. He was found in Raynham and journeyed to Brockton by express.—Brockton Enterprise.

Bear Stranglers.

As Hank Cusker, the famous bronco breaker, and James McNaney, cowboys in the employ of the N-N outfit, were driving a bunch of horses from the head of Big Dry to the round up they encountered four grizzly bears. They determined to make it as interesting for the quartet as possible and instantly gave chase, armed with their lariats only. After chasing them a couple of miles and getting them separated they closed in on two of the ferocious beasts and proceeded to use their skill as rope throwers in a very novel manner. They did their respective acts simultaneously and with precision, one catching his bear around the neck and the other surprised his by roping a hind leg. Then the fun commenced, in one going in one direction and the other in the opposite, with the horses plunging and snorting and trying to get away, but they were hitched to too heavy loads and soon became tractable again. Cusker having caught his bear by the neck, soon had his bearship in a strangling condition, and with his usual courage proceeded to tie him as he would have done with a steer or bronco, and he eventually succeeded in his intended purpose. In the meantime McNaney was doing his best to interest his charge, and no doubt did so.

After making sure of his victim Cusker had a great curiosity to know how McNaney was getting along with his protege, and immediately started to hunt him up. He succeeded in finding him shortly and that his services were welcome, as the bear being caught by the hind leg, had full control of his lung power and was making day hideous by his enraged cries. Cusker then undertook to do the tying act with this one, and becoming very bold after the experience with the other one he proceeded at his victim without fear and got a couple of good rounders from the bear to pay for his impatience. However, they were not very severe strokes, and after dodging around awhile they succeeded in getting a rope around his neck and then made short work of him. The only knife they had was a very small penknife, but they were bound to have the pelts, and after working hard for a couple of hours succeeded in securing their skins. When they had dispatched the two beasts they became quite bloodthirsty and wanted to do some more killing, but the other two bears had made a hasty retreat into the Bad Lands and could not be found, so they proceeded on to the ranch.—Glendive (M. T.) Independent.

A Boarding House Secret.

A certain lady who keeps a rather fashionable boarding house in this city is troubled with ten boarders—no less than ten—who possess enormous appetites. Everybody that knows a boarding house can realize that ten boarders with large appetites are very hard upon the profit of the concern. She tried, like a thorough business woman, all sorts of methods to check these ungodly appetites, but to no avail.

One day she happened to tell her family doctor of these ten hungry men and how they worried her, and he said immediately:

"Why, I can give you an easy remedy for that."

She told him that she would be very much obliged to him for any help that he could give her on the subject, and moreover said that it would be worth a great deal of money to her.

"Well," said he, "next week bake a lot of lemon pies and see that those ten boarders get their share of pie."

"Is that all your prescription, doctor?" said the lady.

"Yes ma'am," he replied, "and you will find it is quite enough."

So the next week she baked a number of lemon pies, and she saw to it that the ten boarders were helped twice to pie on the first day. After that she noticed gradually that their appetites fell away, and at the end of that week there was an unmistakable diminution in the bill for provisions required for that boarding house.

The lemon pie diet was continued until the boarding house became as profitable as it had previously been unprofitable. It is not within my power to say exactly how the lemon pie acts on the average boarder, but it is certainly a fact that in this case the lemon pies produced what no other system of dieting could accomplish. This recipe may be of use to some of the down trodden boarding house mistresses.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Puzzled Porker.

Out on a Yolo county ranch a few years ago a small band of hogs were confined in a lot fenced in with logs. In one part of the fence there was a hollow log, shaped something like a joint of stovepipe, one opening being inside the lot and the other outside. One day an intelligent porker discovered this fact and thereafter went out and returned at his own pleasure. The owner of the ranch happened to witness the mode of egress of the hog one day and decided to put up a job on him. By slewing the log around a little he so contrived as to place both openings of the log inside the lot. In a few moments the hog ran up to his usual exit and passed through the log. Imagine his surprise when he walked out the other end of the log and found himself still inside the lot. He looked about in a puzzled way, scratched his ear and tried again. Same result. "Well, I'll be danged," grunted the hog. Again he ran into the log and ran out again with the same result. He became wild with rage and dashed through the log so often and so fast that the smoke began to issue from the cracks. Then he gave it up as a bad job, and, so the owner of the hog says, never went near the fence until the day of his death.—Woodland (Cal.) Mail.

Thou mayst be sure that he that will in private tell thee of thy faults is thy friend, for he adventures thy dislike and doth hazard thy hatred; for there are few men that can endure it, every man for the most part delighting in self praise, which is one of the most universal follies that bewitcheth mankind.—Sir Walter Raleigh.

SHOES OF ALL NATIONS.

LARGE COLLECTION AT THE MUSEUM IN WASHINGTON.

Evolution of Footgear in Civilized Lands. Fixing the Shape by Law—Wooden Shoes with Chambers for Corns—"Walking on His Uppers."

Various forms of footgear have been devised by different people under different conditions. All the shoes made have one thing in common, and that is a sole. There are shoes consisting of a sole without an upper, but none that consist of an upper without a sole. Not to have a sole on one's shoe has been taken figuratively to represent extreme destitution. So when one wants to speak of a person who is in impecunious circumstances, one, if he uses slang, is likely to say: "He is walking on his uppers."

The oldest form of a shoe or sandal seems to have been merely a flat sole secured to the foot by thongs.

FIRST EFFORTS TO PROTECT THE FEET.

This form can be seen represented in Roman and Greek sculpture. The Egyptians had similar soles or sandals made ordinarily of leather, but sometimes of palm leaves or papyrus. In the Ninth and Tenth centuries the common form of shoe in Europe was the wooden shoe. Even the nobles and princes wore clumsy wooden shoes, such as now are found among the peasants. The Fourteenth century produced the grotesque long pointed shoe. The points had been extended by fashion so far that in the days of Richard II they were secured to the knee by little chains. The church thundered against this absurd and useless fashion, but almost without avail, for it held sway for 200 years or more. In 1463, however, so much headway had been gained against the mode that a decree of the English parliament was obtained to oppose the decree of fashion.

An act was passed prohibiting shoemakers from making points more than two inches long for the unprivileged classes. Henceforth the long point became a badge of the criminal class. But a reaction came, the long point went out of fashion, and people went to the opposite extreme. The toes of shoes were made of grotesque width. This absurdity was carried so far that Queen Mary felt called upon to issue a proclamation restricting the width of toes to six inches. If there were any of her subjects who had a natural spread of the toes greater than six inches they had to go barefooted.

In the Sixteenth century boots were generally worn in England and France and the boots of the cavaliers were made with enormously wide tops, that were raised or folded over. After the restoration the tops of the boots were ornamented, at least by the fops of the day, with lace. The simple form of shoe, which has held its own among Europeans and Americans to the present day, made its appearance in the Seventeenth century. This shoe has undergone several modifications. It was fastened with a buckle before shoe laces and buttons came into vogue.

In the National museum in the department of ethnology are gathered together specimens of foot wear from all over the world. Shoes are studied not alone from the economic standpoint. Ethnologists see in the development of shoes, the growth of the heel, the sole and the upper, the process of evolution, just as the naturalist sees it in the mechanical fitness of the prehensile tail to the conditions of life of the monkey that has it. Many drawers are filled with shoes, and in one of the alcoves of the museum are stored away another collection of shoes. If there was a procession representing all nations and even the subordinate divisions of all nations, the representatives of the different countries and localities could all find in this collection the proper boots or shoes to wear.

FOOTGEAR FROM ALL NATIONS.

Then, scattered through the museum, are effigies—armies of very little ones in cases, representing the dress and the implements and ceremonies of different people, and here and there large figures startling in their lifelike character, and on each of these the students of shoes can find an interesting study. Wooden shoes, or sabots, are worn now among the peasants in many countries in Europe. Their advantage is in their cheapness and durability. In France and Belgium are factories where they are made of maple and ash. There are some in the museum from Norway and Belgium, and some used among the Scandinavian settlers in the northwestern states and territories that seem heavy and clumsy to one accustomed to fine leather. The shoe is made all of one piece, hollowed out. They are fashioned in the form of the foot, and sometimes have a little carving outside to represent buttons and the top caps on leather shoes. The uppers are about a quarter of an inch thick and the soles twice as thick.

On one pair of wooden shoes in the museum, from Belgium, even a representation of the little knob supposed to be made by the wearer's corn appears. An attempt was made to establish the manufacture of wooden shoes in this country during the war, but the industry never reached large proportions. Some, however, are made now and sold among the foreign born people of the northwest or exported to Europe. In the tin district of Cornwall, Egypt made wooden shoes or pattens are used.

One of these in the museum is simply a flat piece of wood, with an iron ring fastened underneath. The ring is on the ground, and raises the flat shoe and its wearer above the ground. The shoe is fastened to the foot with straps. Shoes with wooden soles are very common. They are used in some countries for ordinary wear, and many are made for the special use of persons employed in bleacheries or damp places. The impervious wooden soles keep the feet dry. Some shoes with handsomely adorned uppers are provided with wooden soles.—Washington Star.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

MARION'S LIBERAL RESPONSE

The Citizens Contribute $1,539 71 for the Relief of Conemaugh Valley Sufferers. The Committee's Report.

Marion has responded nobly to the call for help for the sufferers of the terrible Conemaugh valley flood. Over $1500 were contributed from this point, and there is more to follow. This speaks well of Marion's generosity.

A Park Suggested.

As we are to have a new street car line in the near future and the best of accommodations for traveling to any part of the city, at a moderate expense, would it not be well if the idea of a public park be considered and decided upon? One of the most beautiful and delightful spots in the city is the grove in East Marion, of which the Normal school now occupies a part. This would certainly be a suitable location for a public park, as it can be easily reached from any part of the city by a pleasant ride over the street car line. The merits of the place are innumerable, and [illegible] be fixed upon in [illegible] manner, at a very small expense to the city. Nature has made the spot attractive and with a few of the artificial works Marion could have a park of which she might well be proud, and in which the people could seek recreation and refreshment during the hot days of summer.
